In 1929, Arthur Upfield, Australia's premier crime writer, plotted the perfect murder for his novel, The Sands of Windee. Meanwhile, one of his friends, stockman Snowy Rowles, put the scheme into deadly effect, even before the book was published. The result was one of Australia's most sensational murder trials of the 1930s.

Set in and around the fictional advertising agency BND Worldwide, we follow the ridiculous, but true-to-life, dramas that arise from the conflicting interests of an advertising agency and its demanding clients. From inventing banks that care, to terrifying women with fictitious skin conditions, BND is an agency in near-constant panic mode. Through its dealings with Daiyonda and other clients, we see the manic, manipulative, madness that lies behind those 30 second masterpieces known to the rest of us as 'bloody ads'.

THANK GOD YOU'RE HERE is based on a simple premise: get a group of well-known performers and make each walk through a door into a scene without any idea of who they are or what they are walking into. It might be an operating theatre and a simple greeting, 'Thank God you're here, doctor. The patient's ready.' The only thing they can depend on is their ability to make everything up for the next five minutes and cover their tracks as they do it.

They are rescued and taken to the Settlement, where a small community is trying to create civilisation and order against the forces of nature and scavengers.
There is one constant in Jason and Lee's dynamic adventures – the quest to return home.

Zeke Palmer is not your ordinary 14-year-old. He's a talented artist with a special gift: his electronic drawing pad that somehow brings what he draws to life! Zeke also has a weird and seriously wacky family who constantly get in the way of Zeke's plans. Thanks to them, try as he might, Zeke just can't seem to master his own life. So he uses his pad to make things more fun, more sane, more exciting or more whatever he thinks of that day. The trouble is that Zeke always goes with the first impulse that enters his head, for a short while he prevails but then... things always go crazy!

In the first years of settlement in Australia there were more than 250-recorded Indigenous languages. In just 220 years that figure has dropped dramatically and only nine languages are considered safe with 20-30 languages at various levels of endangerment. This story looks at how communities are retrieving their dormant languages from historic books and journals and early film and audio recordings and maintaining those languages through promoting and teaching not only Aboriginal youth but all Australians.

OLD COUNTRY NEW COUNTRY – JOURNEY OF A RAFT is the poignant and politically powerful story of Bardi Elder Roy Wiggan passing on to his nephew Albert the traditional Aboriginal craft of raft making. In the process, they travel from their country – the rugged and ancient beauty of the Kimberley region, one of the few remaining wildernesses on the planet to the once pristine, now industrialised Pilbara to the south.

For the first time on Australian television this film will get behind the upheaval of the last three years in East Timor and present it from the perspective of the East Timorese journalists at the centre of reporting their country's turmoil. Through Jose Belo and Rosa Garcia's story we will understand the dangers of breaking the news in times of crisis when reporters are exploited and news easily turns into propaganda.

We set off in global pursuit of cancer, not just any cancer, but the infectious kind. It's an epic investigation across four continents and 150 million years. There's a classic mystery to be solved, a strange cluster of disease that defies all odds. There are surprising facts and shocking truths... one in three of us will get cancer - we show you how to stack the odds in your favour. And ultimately, armed with new understanding, we reveal that infectious cancers are not bad news but a cause for hope.

HOW KEVIN BACON CURED CANCER brings us a new view of the world, as we unfold the science behind the popular trivia game 'six degrees of Kevin Bacon'. Based on the idea that anyone on the planet can be connected in just a few steps of association, 'six-degrees of separation' was supposedly a myth. Through the film we discover it's at the heart of a major scientific breakthrough. HOW KEVIN BACON CURED CANCER is a thought-provoking examination of an amazing idea, that there might be a pervasive law which nature uses to organise itself.

WRITER Vincent Lamberti

On June 21 2007, the Howard Federal Government launched an intervention into Aboriginal communities in the Northern Territory. It was one of the most dramatic policy shifts in the history of Aboriginal affairs. Relentless media attention focuses on ideological arguments for and against the Intervention, while the voices of those affected by the policy are rarely heard. For this film more than 40 Alice Springs town camp residents were interviewed in depth over the course of eight months to find out the answer to the question – is it working?

KIDS' BUSINESS is an inspiring portrayal of young people learning to grapple with their lives head on. It intimately observes a class of 12-year-old school children as they openly explore the issues of bullying, domestic violence and relationships with their parents. The wisdom and honesty of the children make this a profoundly moving film.

Sister Carmel is no longer required to wear a habit, but since her return to the convent in the outback town of Whyalla, her 'new habit' has been arguably as profound. This documentary follows Sister Carmel, a sister of the Good Samaritans, in her fight for social justice. Along with many of her contemporaries, she is passionately involved with the plight of refugees who were incarcerated in detention for many years and the ongoing psychological trauma suffered after their release. A NUN'S NEW HABIT engages with the essence of compassion and flies in the face of fundamentalism and hatred, highlighting the urgent need for religious tolerance within our society.

WRITER Lara Van Raay

Nadim's mission is to get everyone drunk and happy. Meet the father and daughter team who created Palestine's first beer and see a different side of Palestine, where Jews, Muslims and Christians all drink together in peace. This is a heart-warming story of success that touches on the politics of Jewish settlements, control of natural resources and the difficulties of doing business under occupation. Filmed at the Oktoberfest in the Christian town of Taybeh on Palestine's West Bank, this is a light, festive and positive story from Palestine that you never get to see.

Shivaji was one of India's most colourful heroes. The 17th century visionary forged a kingdom where for centuries the region's chieftains were nothing but 'hired guns' for Muslim invaders from the north. Today he has become an icon. Babasaheb Purandre, now over 80, is a modern icon. He has produced an outdoor extravaganza with a cast of 300 actors, charging cavalry horses, elephants, camels and bullocks to recreate the story of Shivaji. His message echoes through today's youth-driven society.

Having been raised on a chicken farm in the shadow of the Big Pineapple in Queensland, Geoff and Ben Corbett sought their artistic chops deep in Belke-Peterson territory. Dabbling in punk and performance art during the 1980s in Queensland meant tapping a fecund seam of anti-establishment fervour - the kind that remains flaccid and toothless until finding itself eyeballing active Police State oppression. In 1995, the brothers write and perform their death-country musical 'Country Style Livers' and realise they might be onto something, promptly scraping up the afterbirth and breathing life into the perpetual motion 'cane-swamp Rockabilly Punk' machine that becomes known as Sixfthick.

From the lazy late night Samba beats in the clubs of Rio's backstreets, to the pulsating rhythms of the heart of Bahia, SLAVE TO THE RHYTHM showcases the brilliance of African-Brazilian musical talent today. Rhythms are integral to Afro-Brazilian spiritual and social balance. Heard in their religious ceremonies and festive celebrations, the musical rhythms motivate their inner force. African slaves in Brazil endured centuries of hardship but they kept their culture and spirituality alive with their extraordinary talent, strength and self-respect.

For 40 years and with infectious humour and optimism, Jack Charles has juggled a life of crime with another successful career – acting. Since founding the first Aboriginal theatre company in the 1970s, Jack has performed with Australia's most renowned actors and directors in feature films, TV series and hundreds of plays. Filmmaker Amiel Courtin-Wilson follows Jack over seven years – gradually blurring the line between director and accomplice as Jack continually traverses the criminal and acting worlds. However, the law finally catches up with Jack and when he faces a jail sentence he might not survive, he is forced to decide if he can go straight for the first time in his life. BASTARDY is the story of one man's journey into the light.

At the dawn of human civilisation, millions of years after the dinosaurs, a race of super-sized animals roamed Ice Age Earth. Custom built for a half frozen planet, these creatures were the toughest and meanest animals since Tyrannosaurus Rex. But despite their size and strength, something cataclysmic happened to wipe them off the planet. DEATH OF THE MEGA BEASTS explores an extreme and little known world to find an answer to one of science's most important questions. For the last 40 years, surfers young and old the world over have been fed the one unwavering story about the birth of the shortboard: that it was the Americans who really were behind this revolution in design. But, was it, in fact, the brainchild of Australian surfing legend and surfboard designer Bob McTavish? Now, for the first time, a major new documentary feature film shot in Australia, Hawaii and California will tell both sides of this compelling story, transporting our audience to the world's legendary surfing hangouts - from the famous beaches, bars and surf shops to the shaping rooms and workshops of those now-celebrated boardmakers.

Some say that sport shapes the Australian national character, but others would argue it's poetry. Acclaimed filmmaker Dennis O'Rourke journeys around Australia to meet with poets great and small in the places where the words are written, spoken and heard – from schoolrooms to bush poetry festivals and inner-city poetry 'slams' – to hear what people have to say and the various ways they say it. It's a film full of passion and ideas, and a chance through the poets and their poems to see our lives, land and language in a different way, reminding us of the poetry in our own lives, speaking to the poet inside all of us.

From Australian artist and documentarian George Gittoes comes an impassioned and truly urgent film about the struggle against the Taliban. Gittoes becomes fascinated with the cheap, melodramatic films churned out in the frontier areas of Pakistan. These films are full of snarling villains, comic midgets and dancing heroines. Their absurd violence seems to hold a crazy mirror up to what is happening all around, but they are ruthlessly opposed by the truly violent religious hardliners who see them as an affront to Islam. For Gittoes, the makers of these films are the true heroes of art, risking everything for the right to exercise their creative imaginations. He plunges into their world by financing, and even starring in, 'Talibool' films shot under the most dangerous of conditions. It is a journey which mixes the merely bizarre with the truly horrific.

The ANZACs' involvement in WW1 on the Western Front is brought to light through original footage, letters, diaries and photographs, as well as interviews with historians and descendants of our valiant soldiers. Based on Jonathan King's book, 'The Western Front Diaries', this documentary honours the soldiers who volunteered their lives, by recovering their stories from beneath the mantle of the iconic Gallipoli tragedy, which has tended to overshadow their immense contribution to WINNING WORLD WAR 1 on the Western Front.

Filmed in India over six years and narrated by Academy Award-winning actor, Helen Mirren, YES MADAM, SIR is a cinematic feature documentary. A David and Goliath story profiling Asian Nobel Prize-winner Kiran Bedi, India's first woman police officer and most controversial revolutionary. Bedi presents an intriguing paradox: a modern-day Gandhi to the masses and a publicity-seeking megalomaniac to her critics. The true drama lies not in Bedi's extraordinary audacity, but in the inherent contradictions in her character.

To commemorate 200 years since the birth of Charles Darwin, this two-part series combines dramatic reconstruction of Charles Darwin's voyage around the globe from 1831 to 1836. His scientific observations culminated in the publication of the Theory of Evolution in 1859. Well-known contemporary scientists illustrate Darwin's research procedures and evaluate them in light of their own investigations. The series sets out to show that Darwin's extraordinary precision and methodology remain for today's researchers in the fields of biology, geology and zoology.

Produced by Australia's finest Aboriginal filmmakers, this astonishing series chronicles the birth of a country and the collision of two worlds. It's an epic story that comes alive through the struggles of individuals, both black and white. Beautifully filmed, the series melds landscape, art, interviews and first-hand accounts with a vast archival collection to present the birth of contemporary Australia as never seen before, from the perspective of its first people: the first Australians.

GURRUMUL – SON OF THE RAINBOW SERPENT is a two-part documentary about a recent musical phenomenon coming out of Galiwin'ku on Elcho Island in north-east Arnhem Land, Geoffrey 'Gurrumul' Yunnupingu. Blind since birth, Gurrumul is a self-taught virtuoso of the guitar, piano and drums and played all three instruments as well as back-up vocals for the hugely successful Indigenous pop rock group of the 1980s and 1990s Yothu Yindi, led by his cousin Mandaway Yunnupingu. Since Yothu Yindi, Gurrumul formed his own reggae rock group Saltwater Band with his brothers from Elcho and more recently has gone solo with an album that went through the roof of the Australian music charts.

The 1996–2007 Howard Government made the most determined attempt to change Australian society since the brief and revolutionary Whitlam era of the early 1970s. LIBERAL RULE is a documentary series that explores the evolution, rule and impact of John Winston Howard. With the help of Howard himself, his closest Ministers, Chiefs of Staff and advisors, plus Australia's leading political historians, social scientists, economists and authors we examine the Howard philosophy and his reform agenda for our economy, our society and our international relations. Nothing like it has been attempted in Australian television.

Generations of parents have wondered why their children turn into obnoxious, argumentative, angst-ridden, reckless, lazy and rebellious monsters. 'Whatever!' has the answers. Using on-screen scientific tests, we will tread where adults fear to go. This series will combine observational documentary of family life and teens behaving badly, with carefully designed scientific challenges that put our teenagers to the test. Experts will be on hand to give physical, physiological and psychological analysis of the way teenagers behave while we talk to teenagers and parents to give us a 360 degree view of the experiments and what they could mean in everyday life.

Well-known Australians go in search of their family history, revealing secrets from the past. Australia's multicultural background makes this is a global story, with each celebrity tracing their ancestors around the world. They travel to the places where their forebears would have lived, loved and died, and learn about the hardships and hurdles their ancestors overcame. This is a fascinating chronicle of the social, ethnic and cultural evolution of Australia's national identity.
